About the Editor

HARRY S. DAVIS is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel LLP in New York. His practice focuses on complex commercial litigation and regulatory matters for financial services industry clients, including hedge funds, funds of funds, private equity funds, prime and clearing brokers, auditors, and administrators. Harry has substantial experience in both securities regulatory matters and private litigation, including investigations by the SEC, U.S. Attorneys Offices, the Department of Justice, the CFTC, the FTC, state attorneys general, state securities regulators, and self-regulatory organizations.

Harry has litigated numerous cases in federal and state courts throughout the United States, including his recent successful representation of a prime broker in a hotly contested and high-profile fraudulent transfer trial brought by the bankruptcy trustee of a failed hedge fund. Over the course of his career, Harry has represented clients in investigations and litigations involving allegations of insider trading, market manipulation, market timing and late trading, alleged securities law violations concerning PIPEs, short-swing profits, securities and common law fraud, advertising, breach of fiduciary duty, and breach of contract, among other claims. To prevent minor issues from growing into bigger problems, he provides litigation and compliance counseling, including advice on insider trading questions and securities law training to many of the firm’s clients, and conducts internal investigations. Harry is a member of the American Bar Association, New York Bar Association, New York City Bar Association, New York County Lawyer’s Association, SIFMA Compliance and Legal Division, Federal Bar Council, and Federalist Society. Harry is also a prolific writer and speaker who regularly shares his expertise on insider trading and other securities regulatory and litigation matters.
About the Contributors

ERIC A. BENSKY is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in Washington, D.C. His practice focuses on securities litigation, including civil, disciplinary, and criminal proceedings and investigations before federal and state courts, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority, various stock exchanges, and arbitration panels of FINRA and other self-regulatory organizations. Eric is also a member of the American Bar Association and New York State Bar Association.

CHARLES J. CLARK is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in Washington, D.C. office. His practice focuses on representing public companies, financial institutions, broker-dealers and accounting firms, and their senior executives in securities-related enforcement proceedings before the SEC, DOJ, FINRA, CFPB, and other federal and state law enforcement and regulatory authorities. In particular, Charles counsels hedge funds, private equity firms, venture capital funds and other asset managers through regulatory scrutiny, including consulting on routine and risk-based inspections and examinations. He defends investigations involving a broad spectrum of issues, including accounting and disclosure fraud, insider trading, foreign corruption, offering fraud, market manipulation, breach of fiduciary duty and conflicts of interest. In addition, Charles represents boards of directors and associated committees in internal investigations, and he provides guidance on corporate governance and trading practices for public companies and private funds. Prior to entering private practice, Charles worked for nine years in the SEC’s Division of Enforcement, during which he was named assistant director and was responsible for supervising the SEC’s investigation into Enron Corp. Charles also served as chief counsel of litigation for Capital One Financial Corp.

MICHAEL G. CUTINI is a special counsel at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. His practice focuses on complex commercial, business, securities class action, shareholder derivative, and bankruptcy litigation on behalf of publicly and privately held companies, their directors and officers, and financial services industry clients, including hedge funds, private equity funds, prime and clearing brokers, and fund administrators. Michael has represented clients in all phases of litigation, from pre-complaint dispute counseling through appeal, as well as in responding to SEC investigations and requests. His practice also includes advising clients on antitrust law compliance issues, particularly in the context of mergers and acquisitions. Michael is a member of the American Bar Association and New York State Bar Association.

Marc E. Elovitz is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. He heads up the firm’s regulatory compliance work in the private investment funds area. Marc advises hedge funds, private equity funds, and funds of funds on compliance with the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 and other federal, state, and self-regulatory organization requirements, including establishing compliance programs, registering with the SEC, and handling SEC examinations. Marc provides guidance to clients on securities trading matters and represents them in regulatory investigations and enforcement actions, arbitrations, and civil litigation. He also regularly leads training sessions for portfolio managers and analysts on complying with insider trading and market manipulation laws. A member of the American Bar Association’s Business and Litigation Sections, the New York City Bar Association, and the Hedge Funds Subcommittee of the Committee on Federal Securities Regulation, Marc is a frequent speaker at hedge fund industry conferences and seminars.

Alan R. Glickman is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. He has been in practice for over thirty years, in the areas of complex commercial, securities, shareholder derivative, RICO, antitrust, accountants’ liability, intellectual property, real estate, class action defense, mergers and acquisitions, bankruptcy and creditors’ rights litigation, and control disputes. Alan’s clients include corporations, senior executives, creditors, private equity funds, investment banks and issuers, boards of directors, financiers, trustees, accounting firms, and audit committees.

Howard O. Godnick is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. He focuses his practice in the areas of complex securities and commercial litigation, including class actions and corporate control disputes, creditor rights litigation, and accountant liability litigation. Howard represents hedge and private equity funds, their portfolio companies, boards of directors, and auditing firms in cases touching on every facet of their businesses. He is a member of the Litigation Section of the American Bar Association, and is a member of the National Law Center on Homelessness and Poverty's board of directors. Howard was honored to receive the New York Law School's Distinguished Alumnus Award for his pro bono work on behalf of the victims of Hurricane Katrina as well as pro bono counsel awards from the National Law Center on Homelessness and Poverty, the Louisiana Bar Association and the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights. In addition, he was a finalist for the 2007 Trial Lawyer of the Year Award from the Public Justice Foundation.

William H. Gußman, Jr. is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. His practice focuses on representing financial institutions and officers and directors in complex commercial litigation, including in securities fraud actions, fraudulent transfer actions, post-acquisition disputes, and derivative actions. Bill's clients have included leading prime brokers, hedge funds, private equity firms, investment banks, lenders, and individuals. He has substantial trial experience, having tried cases in federal and state courts throughout the United States and in a variety of alternative dispute resolution venues, including AAA, FINRA, and JAMS arbitrations. Bill frequently litigates in bankruptcy court, often representing noteholders in disputes over such things as enterprise valuation and asset ownership. He has also assisted clients in responding to SEC investigations and requests.

Adam C. Harris is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. His practice includes corporate restructurings, workouts and creditors' rights litigation, with a particular focus on the representation of investment funds and financial institutions in distressed situations, including both in-court and out-of-court restructurings, and distressed acquisitions by third-party investors or exiting creditors through “credit bid” or similar strategies. In addition to representing creditors and acquirers in distressed situations, Adam has represented Chapter 11 debtors, as well as portfolio companies in out-of-court exchange offers, debt repurchases, and other capital restructurings.

Marcy Ressler Harris is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. She concentrates her practice in the areas of securities enforcement and regulatory investigations and litigation for financial services industry clients, including hedge funds and funds of funds. Marcy also has an active litigation practice involving family disputes, will contests and other Surrogate’s Court matters, contested guardianships, and family office fraud. Marcy has represented numerous individuals and fund clients facing Ponzi scheme clawback claims, and has handled SEC enforcement matters and investigations related to CDOs, insider trading, market timing, disclosure, and valuation issues. During her twenty-five years at the firm, she has litigated in federal and state courts in New York and elsewhere, conducted trials, arbitrations, and mediations, conducted internal investigations related to accounting fraud, market manipulation, failed corporate transactions, and conflicts of interest, and provided ongoing litigation and regulatory compliance counseling. Marcy serves on Human Rights First’s Board of Advocates.

Taleah E. Jennings is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. Her practice focuses on complex commercial litigation of all types and securities litigation and enforcement matters, as well as employment-related disputes. Her clients are primarily financial services entities, such as investment managers, private equity firms, interdealer brokerage firms and commercial real estate firms. Taleah has litigated cases in various state and federal courts, as well as regulatory and arbitration forums, from the commencement of claims through trials and appeals.

Eleazer Klein is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. He practices in the areas of securities law, mergers and acquisitions, and regulatory compliance. Ele is best known for his expertise in the development and implementation of alternative investment structures for private equity investments and, specifically, the structuring and negotiating of private investments in public equity, or PIPEs, and related products including Registered Direct offerings, Convertible 144A offerings, Reverse Mergers, Equity Lines, and SPACs. He currently works on approximately 200 PIPE- or PIPE-market-related transactions every year for some of the largest private investment groups and investment banks in the United States and abroad. In addition, Ele advises clients on initial public offerings and secondary offerings, venture capital financing, indenture defaults and interpretation, and activist investing, as well as counseling clients in the regulatory areas of short-selling, Sections 13 and 16, Rule 144, insider trading, and Regulation M/Rule 105. Ele has authored numerous books and articles on securities law and regulatory matters and is a frequent speaker on these topics.

Anna Maleva-Otto is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in London. Her practice concentrates on advising asset managers on a range of U.K. financial services regulatory matters, including the impact of EU directives and regulations. She advises on the establishment of regulated businesses, financial crime (including market abuse, money laundering and bribery), financial promotion and offers of securities, regulatory reporting and disclosure obligations, regulatory capital, and conduct of business rules.

David K. Momborquette is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. His practice focuses on complex commercial litigation and regulatory matters primarily for financial services industry clients, including hedge funds, funds of funds, and private equity funds. David has substantial experience in both private securities litigation and securities regulatory matters, including class action litigation and investor disputes, as well as investigations by the SEC, NYSE, FINRA, and state attorneys general offices. He is a member of the American Bar Association and the New York City Bar Association. David has written extensively on securities regulation and frequently presents on regulatory compliance and enforcement issues.

Martin L. Perschetz is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. He is co-chair of the Litigation Group and a member of the firm’s Executive Committee. He concentrates his practice in the areas of white-collar criminal defense, SEC enforcement, securities litigation, and accountants’ liability. Marty was previously an assistant U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York, where he was chief of the Major Crimes Unit and led a team of prosecutors in the investigation and prosecution of federal criminal cases involving a wide variety of complex business and tax frauds. Immediately before coming to SRZ, he served as chief counsel to the Mayor of New York City’s Special Commission to Investigate City Contracts and as deputy commissioner of the New York City Department of Investigation. Drawing on more than three decades of broad and deep prosecutorial, investigative, defense, and trial experience, Marty has represented a wide array of clients in significant matters involving federal and state prosecutors, the SEC, the NYSE and FINRA, as well as in large and complex private civil litigation and in corporate internal investigations. The American Lawyer named Marty a “Litigator of the Week” for his successful defense work on a trial believed to be the largest federal securities class action ever to proceed to a jury verdict.

JEFFREY F. ROBERTSON is a special counsel at Schulte Roth & Zabel in Washington, D.C. His practice concentrates on securities enforcement and regulatory investigations and litigation for financial services industry clients. During more than fifteen years of practice, Jeff has handled numerous insider trading inquiries and investigations by the SEC and DOJ and has litigated a number of insider trading cases, including the successful defense of an SEC injunctive action in a jury trial held in federal district court. He regularly advises clients on insider trading issues and has written extensively about such issues.

BETTY SANTANGELO is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. Her practice concentrates on white-collar criminal defense and securities enforcement. A former assistant U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York, where she specialized in securities and commodities fraud prosecutions, Betty’s practice includes representing financial institutions, corporate entities, and individuals in matters brought by the U.S. attorney’s offices, by various regulatory agencies, including the SEC, the CFTC, FINRA, and SIGTARP, and by state and local prosecutors, as well as conducting internal investigations for these entities. She has also served as an independent consultant in SEC enforcement matters. Betty has served as division director of the ABA Litigation Committee, and as chair of its Securities Litigation and Broker-Dealer Subcommittees. Betty has served as the Securities and Futures Industry’s representative on the Bank Secrecy Act Advisory Group of the U.S. Department of the Treasury, and is currently counsel to the SIFMA’s Anti-Money Laundering and Financial Crimes Committee. In 2009, the New York Chapter of the National Organization for Women presented her with its annual Women of Power and Influence Award. Betty is a much-sought-after speaker and writer. In 2008, she won a Burton Award, which recognizes exceptional legal writing, for an article she wrote on the FCPA.
HOWARD SCHIFFMAN is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in Washington, D.C. He is co-chair of the firm’s Litigation Group. Howard’s practice includes investigations and enforcement proceedings brought by various exchanges and government agencies, including the SEC, the DOJ, and FINRA, as well as a diverse array of civil litigation, including securities class actions and arbitrations. He has also served as special internal investigative counsel to public companies. Howard counsels clients, including major financial institutions and investment banks, leading Nasdaq market-makers, institutional and retail brokerage firms and their registered representatives, trade execution and clearing firms, prime brokers, national accounting firms, hedge funds, and public and private companies and their senior officers in risk analysis and litigation avoidance. He has extensive trial experience and a solid record of success in numerous SEC enforcement actions, SRO proceedings and FINRA arbitrations. In private practice for almost thirty years, Howard began his career as a trial attorney with the SEC Division of Enforcement. He is a member of American Bar Association Sections on Litigation, Corporation, Finance and Securities Law, and is a director (and former president) of the Association of SEC Alumni Inc.

GARY STEIN is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. He focuses on white-collar criminal defense and securities regulatory matters, complex commercial litigation, internal investigations, anti-money laundering issues, civil and criminal forfeiture proceedings, and appellate litigation. He represents public companies, financial institutions, hedge funds, other entities, and individuals as subjects, victims, and witnesses in federal and state criminal investigations and regulatory investigations by the SEC, SROs, and state attorneys general. He has conducted numerous internal investigations involving potential violations of the FCPA, financial statement fraud, money laundering, and other matters, and advises companies on compliance with the FCPA and anti-money laundering and OFAC regulations. As a former assistant U.S. attorney and chief appellate attorney in the Southern District of New York, Gary investigated, prosecuted, tried, and represented the government on appeal in numerous white-collar criminal cases involving money laundering, fraudulent investment schemes, bank fraud, insider trading, art theft, illegal kickbacks, terrorist financing, and other financial crimes. His civil litigation experience includes claims of fraud and breach of contract, securities class actions and derivative actions, contests over corporate control, and disputes arising from the sale of a business. Gary serves on the Board of Directors of The Legal Aid Society and the Board of Editors of the Business Crimes Bulletin.

MICHAEL E. SWARTZ is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. His practice concentrates on complex commercial, securities, and business litigation and antitrust. His litigation practice includes securities class actions, other securities-related litigation, proxy contests and other corporate-control disputes, accountants’ liability, international litigation, and arbitration. Michael’s antitrust practice involves the representation of companies across a range of industries, including private equity firms, financial services firms, rating agencies, defense industry companies, auto manufacturers, car rental companies, and supermarkets, among others. In addition, Michael tried one of the nine securities class action trials to go to a verdict in the last fifteen years. Prior to joining SRZ, Michael was an editor of the Columbia Law Review and clerked for Judge Irving R. Kaufman for the Second Circuit Court of Appeals. Michael is currently serving on the New York City Bar Association Securities Litigation and Arbitration Committees, the Advisory Board for the Institute for Transnational Arbitration, the United States Counsel for International Business’ Arbitration Committee, and the CPR Institute’s Banking and Financial Services Committee, and is the Regional Vice Chair for the Mid-Atlantic Region of the Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights Under Law. Michael is also a member of the ABA’s Litigation and Antitrust Sections, and the International Bar Association.

ROBERT J. WARD is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. His practice focuses on complex commercial and securities litigation. Bob has represented major corporations, commercial banks, investment banks, accounting firms, private equity firms, hedge funds, and other business entities in complex commercial and securities litigation, including class actions and derivative actions, in federal court (including extensive experience in bankruptcy court) and state courts, in New York and elsewhere. He has defended and prosecuted claims of breach of contract, fraud, accountants’ liability, securities fraud, breach of fiduciary duty and negligence by corporate officers and directors, fraudulent transfer, breach of covenants not to compete, professional malpractice, and intellectual property infringement.
He also has extensive arbitration and mediation experience. Bob is a member of the bars of New York, the U.S. District Courts for the Southern and Eastern Districts, and the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second and Federal Circuits.

Marc Weingarten is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in New York. His practice focuses on mergers & acquisitions, leveraged buyouts, corporate governance, securities law, and investment partnerships. One of the leading lawyers representing activist investors, he has advised on many of the most significant activist campaigns in recent years. Marc has served on the New York City Bar Association’s Committee on Mergers, Acquisitions and Corporate Control Contests for multiple terms, and on its Committee on Corporation Law. The American Lawyer selected Marc as a “Dealmaker of the Year” for his representation of Cerberus Capital Management in its acquisition of a controlling interest in GMAC from General Motors.

Peter H. White is a partner at Schulte Roth & Zabel in Washington, D.C. He concentrates his practice on representing corporations and executives in criminal and related civil and administrative matters, including grand jury investigations, internal investigations, SEC enforcement proceedings, False Claims Act and qui tam lawsuits, and shareholder class actions. Pete has litigated disputes involving accounting and securities fraud, FCPA violations, government program fraud, false claims and statements, antitrust violations, public corruption, tax evasion, insider trading, environmental violations, and other claims. A former assistant U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia and the District of Columbia, Pete has served as lead counsel in over eighty federal and local jury trials and many more bench trials. Recent engagements have involved allegations of accounting and securities fraud, FCPA violations, government program fraud, false claims and statements, antitrust violations, public corruption, tax evasion, insider trading, and environmental violations. Pete was the recipient of the DOJ Director’s Award for Superior Performance as an Assistant U.S. Attorney.

Primary Statutes and Rules

| Q 2.1 | Is there a federal statute that specifically defines insider trading? | 2-3 |
| Q 2.1.1 | How does the legislation proposed in response to Newman seek to define insider trading liability? | 2-6 |
| Q 2.1.2 | Even if none of the current bills pass, does the renewed focus on the lack of federal insider trading legislation make it just a matter of time before the law in this area is codified by statute? | 2-8 |
| Q 2.2 | What existing federal statutes have been interpreted as prohibiting insider trading? | 2-8 |
| Q 2.3 | What is the primary statutory source of liability for insider trading? | 2-8 |
| Q 2.4 | What SEC rule is most commonly invoked in insider trading cases? | 2-9 |
| Q 2.5 | Are there any rules or regulations promulgated by the SEC under section 10(b) that specifically relate to insider trading? | 2-10 |

Prohibition on Short-Swing Profits

| Q 2.6 | Is there a specific section of the 1934 Act that directly addresses insider trading? | 2-11 |
| Q 2.6.1 | How does section 16(b) deter insider trading if liability is automatic (without any proof that the corporate insider was “aware” of material nonpublic information, let alone proof that the insider abused that information for personal trading)? | 2-12 |

Insider Trading and Tender Offers

| Q 2.7 | Does the 1934 Act restrict insider trading in connection with tender offers? | 2-12 |
| Q 2.7.1 | How does Rule 14e-3 differ from Rule 10b-5? | 2-13 |

Insider Trading in Commodities Markets

| Q 2.8 | Does the Commodity Exchange Act restrict insider trading in connection with swaps, futures, and contracts of sale of commodities? | 2-13 |
| Q 2.8.1 | How does CFTC Rule 180.1 differ from SEC Rule 10b-5? | 2-15 |

  Q 3.4.4  Do the rules apply to private purchases and sales of securities? .................. 3-9
  Q 3.4.5  Can an insider use information as a basis for trading in securities of another company as to which he is not an insider? .......................................................................................... 3-10
Q 3.5  What is a “security” for purposes of the insider trading rules? ....................... 3-11
  Q 3.5.1  Do the rules cover only instruments that are traded on a securities exchange? .......................................................................................................................... 3-11
  Q 3.5.2  Do the rules apply to trading in derivatives? .................................................. 3-11
  Q 3.5.3  Are notes securities for purposes of the insider trading rules? .................... 3-11
  Q 3.5.4  Are commodities futures considered securities within the meaning of the insider trading rules? .......................................................................................... 3-12

Trading “On the Basis of” Information .................................................................... 3-12

Q 3.6  What does it mean to trade “on the basis of” information? .............................. 3-12
  Q 3.6.1  Is a noninsider who becomes aware of material nonpublic information about a company prohibited from trading in its securities? ........................................................................ 3-13
  Q 3.6.2  Are there any circumstances under which an insider can trade while aware of material nonpublic information? .................................................................................. 3-13
Q 3.6.3 Can an organization be found liable for trading on the basis of material nonpublic information possessed by an employee—even if the person making the investment decision for the organization was not personally aware of the information? .................................3-14

Q 3.6.4 How can an organization avoid having its employees’ knowledge of material nonpublic information imputed to it?.................................................................3-14

Q 3.6.5 Can someone who does not actually purchase or sell securities be liable for insider trading?.................................3-14

Material Information ........................................................................................................ 3-14

Q 3.7 When is information material? .................................................................................... 3-14

Q 3.7.1 Is there any specific type of information that will almost always be considered material? ......................................................3-15

Q 3.7.2 What factors are relevant in determining whether information is material? .................3-16

Nonpublic Information ........................................................................................................ 3-16

Q 3.8 When does information become public so that insider trading restrictions no longer apply? .................................................................3-16

Q 3.8.1 Does information become public as soon as it is disclosed?........................................3-16

Q 3.8.2 How do you determine whether information has been effectively disseminated? ..........3-17

Q 3.8.3 Is disclosure to a group of securities analysts or group of institutional investors enough to make information public? .................................................................3-17

Q 3.8.4 Does information become public when an issuer posts it on its public website? ..................3-18

Q 3.8.5 Is the fact that information is included in a filing with a government agency enough to make it public? ......................................................3-18

Q 3.8.6 Is an issuer required to take specific steps to ensure that information is effectively disseminated to the public? .................................................................3-18

Q 3.8.7 Are there any rules an issuer must comply with when disclosing nonpublic information? ........................................................................ 3-19

Q 3.8.8 Does Regulation FD differentiate between intentional and unintentional disclosure? ........3-19

Q 3.8.9 Does Regulation FD apply to employees and temporary insiders of the issuer? ..............3-20

Q 3.8.10 Does Regulation FD provide specific methods an issuer can use to make sure that information is properly disclosed?......................................................3-20

Information Obtained by Breach of Duty ................................................................. 3-21
Q 3.9 What kind of breaches of duty are grounds for insider trading liability? ................................................................. 3-21
  Q 3.9.1 Who owes fiduciary duties to corporate shareholders? ....... 3-21
  Q 3.9.2 Can someone who receives information from a corporate insider be found liable for insider trading? ...... 3-21
  Q 3.9.3 What other duties can be the basis for imposing insider trading liability? ................................................................. 3-22

Related Prohibitions Applicable to Insiders ............................................................ 3-22
Q 3.10 Are there insider trading rules that apply in specific contexts? ..... 3-22
Q 3.11 Are there other rules that restrict an insider’s ability to profit from trading? ................................................................. 3-23
Q 3.12 Is there any difference between the elements needed to establish criminal insider trading and civil liability? ............ 3-23
Q 3.13 Is trading while in possession of material nonpublic information a violation of any laws other than the federal securities laws? .......................................................................... 3-24

Chapter 4 What Is a Security?
Michael G. Cutini

Statutory Definitions .............................................................................................. 4-2
Q 4.1 What is the statutory definition of a “security”? ........................................ 4-2

Judicial Interpretations ......................................................................................... 4-4
Q 4.2 How has the Supreme Court interpreted the statutory definition of “security”? ........................................................................ 4-4
Q 4.3 How have courts applied and elaborated on the Howey test for investment contracts? ................................................................. 4-7
  Q 4.3.1 What sort of investment is required? .............................................. 4-7
  Q 4.3.2 What is a “common enterprise”? ................................................. 4-8
  Q 4.3.3 What forms of “profit” meet the Howey test? ............................ 4-8
  Q 4.3.4 When are profits “solely” from the efforts of others? ................. 4-9
Q 4.4 What is the risk capital test for an investment contract? ......................... 4-9
Q 4.5 How have the courts interpreted and applied the Reves family resemblance test for notes? ..................................................... 4-10
Particular Examples...............................................................................................4-10
Q 4.6 Is stock always a security?...........................................................................4-10
  Q 4.6.1 Does short selling of stock implicate the insider trading laws?........4-11
Q 4.7 Are debt instruments such as promissory notes and bank loans securities? 4-11
Q 4.8 Are certificates of deposit securities?..........................................................4-12
Q 4.9 Are puts, calls, and other futures securities?..............................................4-12
Q 4.10 Are derivatives such as credit default swaps (CDSs), total return swaps, and other derivative instruments securities?......4-13
Q 4.11 Are partnership interests securities?.........................................................4-15
Q 4.12 Are limited liability company interests securities?.................................4-16
Q 4.13 Are interests in business trusts and real estate investment trusts securities? 4-16
Q 4.14 Are real estate interests securities?............................................................4-16

Q 4.22 How has the Internet affected the definition of a security?.......4-20

Chapter 5  Scienter and Trading “On the Basis Of”
Gary Stein & Martin L. Perschetz

Scienter.......................................................................................................................5-2
Q 5.1 What is scienter? ..........................................................................................5-2
Q 5.2 Is scienter the same as wrongful motive? ..................................................5-3
Q 5.3 What is the standard for establishing scienter in a civil insider trading case? 5-3
Q 5.4 What is the standard for establishing scienter in the tipper-tippee context? 5-4
Q 5.5 What is the standard for establishing scienter in criminal insider trading cases?5-6
Q 5.6 Is the “degree” of scienter relevant for purposes of establishing insider trading liability? ........................................5-6

Pleading and Proving Scienter .................................................................5-7
Q 5.7 Is scienter subject to the heightened pleading standards under Rule 9(b)? .................................................................5-7
Q 5.8 What kind of proof is used to establish scienter? .........................5-8
Q 5.9 What constitutes “circumstantial evidence” of scienter? .................5-8
Q 5.10 May an individual employee’s scienter be imputed to the company or entity for whom the individual works? .................................5-9
Q 5.11 May materiality affect the scienter analysis? .................................5-10

Trading “On the Basis Of” ........................................................................5-10
Q 5.12 How does the SEC define trading “on the basis of” material nonpublic information? .................................................................5-10
Q 5.13 Why did the SEC adopt Rule 10b5-1? .............................................5-11
Q 5.14 What was the SEC’s rationale for adopting an awareness standard rather than a use standard? ....................................................5-13
  Q 5.14.1 What does it mean to be “aware” of material nonpublic information? ...............................................................................5-13
  Q 5.14.2 Is knowingly trading on the basis of inside information sufficient to establish scienter? .....................................................5-14
Q 5.15 Are there any affirmative defenses under Rule 10b5-1? .................5-14

The Nonuse Defense After Rule 10b5-1 ......................................................5-15
Q 5.16 Are the affirmative defenses listed in Rule 10b5-1 the only available defenses? .................................................................5-15
Q 5.17 Do the courts agree with the SEC that nonuse is not a defense unless one of the affirmative defenses set forth in Rule 10b5-1 is satisfied? ........................................................................5-16
Q 5.18 Does the SEC have the authority to preclude a defendant’s nonuse as a defense? .................................................................5-17
Q 5.19 Does Rule 10b5-1 apply in criminal cases? ..................................5-17

Rule 10b5-1 and Corporate Liability ..........................................................5-20
Q 5.20 May a corporation be held liable if Employee A is aware of material nonpublic information but Employee B, who does the trade, is unaware of that information? ............................................5-20
  Q 5.20.1 Who bears the burden of proof on this issue? ..........................5-20
  Q 5.20.2 What does the SEC consider to be “reasonable” policies and procedures? .................................................................5-21
Rule 10b5-1 Plans .................................................................5-21
Q 5.21 What are the requirements of a Rule 10b5-1 plan?.........5-21
Q 5.22 What are the pros and cons of adopting a Rule 10b5-1 plan?5-21
  Q 5.22.1 Can a Rule 10b5-1 plan be modified? ..................5-24
  Q 5.22.2 Can a Rule 10b5-1 plan be terminated? .................5-25
Q 5.23 Must a public company disclose a Rule 10b51 plan? ....5-25

Chapter 6 Materiality
Harry S. Davis

Definitions and Policy Rationales.................................................6-3 Q 6.1 What nonpublic information is “material” for purposes of the insider trading laws? .......................................................6-3
Q 6.2 Can I trade on information that is not “material” but is still nonpublic and comes from a company insider? ......................6-3
Q 6.3 What is the policy rationale behind allowing people to trade while aware of nonmaterial nonpublic information obtained from a corporate insider but not permitting them to trade when that information is “material”? .................................6-4 Q 6.4 Is there a bright line between material information and nonmaterial information? ...................................................6-4
Q 6.5 What is the definition of materiality? .........................6-6

Evidence of Materiality.................................................................6-7
Q 6.6 How do the courts, the SEC, and other regulators distinguish between material information and nonmaterial information? .................................................................6-7
  Q 6.6.1 Is certainty required in assessing whether a reasonable investor would consider the information important in making an investment decision? .................6-8
Q 6.7 How does the test for determining materiality in the context of insider trading law compare to the test for materiality in other securities law contexts? .......................................6-9
Q 6.8 Is materiality a question of law, a question of fact, or a mixed question of law and fact? .......................................6-9

Examples..................................................................................6-9
Q 6.9 What types of nonpublic information do courts and regulators frequently regard as material? .........................6-9
Q 6.10 What types of material nonpublic information typically give rise to insider trading cases brought by the SEC? 6-10
Q 6.11 What types of material nonpublic information typically give rise to criminal insider trading prosecutions? 6-11
Q 6.12 What kind of material information is the most common basis for a civil insider trading case? 6-11
Q 6.13 What are some examples of nonpublic information that courts and regulators frequently regard as not being material? 6-12

The Factual Inquiry 6-13
Q 6.14 How do I determine whether information that I possess is material or not material in making an investment decision? 6-13
Q 6.14.1 What sort of “facts and circumstances” are important in making a materiality determination? 6-14
Q 6.14.2 How important is predicting the likely market impact once the information is disclosed to the market? 6-15
Q 6.14.3 How significant is “hindsight bias” in materiality determinations? 6-15
Q 6.14.4 When I determine that information is not material, how can I best protect myself against being second-guessed by regulators or prosecutors after the fact? 6-16
Q 6.15 What methods do regulators and prosecutors frequently rely upon in determining whether information was material? 6-17

How Material Information Can Become Nonmaterial 6-17
Q 6.16 Can information that was material lose its materiality, thereby permitting the person or entity to resume trading? 6-17
Q 6.16.1 How would a court determine the staleness of previously material information? 6-18
Q 6.16.2 How frequently does material information become nonmaterial? 6-18
Q 6.16.3 Is there a particular time period after which material information automatically becomes stale and therefore no longer material? 6-18
Q 6.16.4 How do the concepts of materiality and nonpublic status overlap? 6-18
The Mosaic Theory ............................................................................................................6-19
Q 6.17 What is the “mosaic theory” and how does it relate to materiality determinations? .................................................................6-19
  Q 6.17.1 May I incorporate material nonpublic information into my mosaic and still trade in the company’s securities? ................6-19
  Q 6.17.2 What policies support the mosaic theory? .......................................6-20
  Q 6.17.3 What if, after I have used a broad mosaic to decide to trade but before I actually place the trade with a broker, I learn a piece of material nonpublic information? .........................................................6-21

Chapter 7 Nonpublic Information
Jeffrey F. Robertson

Definitions .............................................................................................................................7-2
Q 7.1 What is nonpublic information? ..............................................................................7-2
  Q 7.1.1 Is all information either public or nonpublic for insider trading purposes? ..................7-3
  Q 7.1.2 Is there a clear distinction between public and nonpublic information? .....................7-3
Q 7.2 Do the federal securities laws define nonpublic information? .........................7-3
Q 7.3 What guidance do the SEC Rules provide? ..............................................................7-4
  Q 7.3.1 Is public information for insider trading purposes the same as “publicly disclosed” information under SEC disclosure rules? ......................................................7-5
  Q 7.3.2 Why has the SEC resisted calls to provide more concrete guidance about what information is nonpublic? ...............7-5

Determining Whether Information Is Nonpublic ...............................................................7-6
Q 7.4 For insider trading purposes, who decides whether information is nonpublic? ..........7-6
Q 7.5 What is the best evidence that information is public? ........................................7-6
Q 7.6 What is the efficient-market hypothesis and how does it relate to whether or not information is public or nonpublic? ....7-6
  Q 7.6.1 Is there any reason to question the efficient-market hypothesis? .......................7-7
  Q 7.6.2 Have the courts accepted the efficient-market hypothesis? .................................7-8
Table of Contents

Q 7.7 Is it ever permissible to trade while knowing nonpublic information? .......................................................... 7-9
Q 7.8 Can insiders ever escape liability for trading based on information they mistakenly believed was public? .......... 7-9

How Nonpublic Information Becomes Public .............................................................. 7-9
Q 7.9 How does nonpublic information become public? .................................................. 7-9
  Q 7.9.1 What factors determine when information is no longer nonpublic? ...................... 7-10
  Q 7.9.2 Does nonpublic information become public immediately upon disclosure? .......... 7-11
  Q 7.9.3 How widely disseminated must information be to be considered public? .............. 7-12
  Q 7.9.4 Can information that is available to the public, though difficult to access, still be nonpublic? .................. 7-12
  Q 7.9.5 What techniques are used to ascertain when information has been assimilated by the market? ........ 7-13

Examples .................................................................................................................... 7-13
Q 7.10 What kinds of information do courts and regulators typically consider to be nonpublic? ................................. 7-13
Q 7.11 Must nonpublic information relate to the issuer? .................................................... 7-14
  Q 7.11.1 Must nonpublic information be known to the issuer, or can it originate elsewhere? ......................... 7-14
Q 7.12 Must nonpublic information be important? .......................................................... 7-15
Q 7.13 How specific must nonpublic information be? ....................................................... 7-15
Q 7.14 Can information disclosed to persons outside the issuer remain nonpublic? ................ 7-16
  Q 7.14.1 Can information known only to a few investors nonetheless be deemed public? .......... 7-17
  Q 7.14.2 Can information be considered public even though the issuer has not disclosed it? ......................... 7-17
  Q 7.14.3 Will information posted on an issuer’s website or disclosed in an issuer-sponsored blog be considered public? ........................................................................ 7-17
Q 7.15 Once a matter is disclosed, can undisclosed details or subsequent developments remain nonpublic? ........ 7-18
Q 7.16 Is information provided by sell-side research analysts or sell-side coverage personnel in their research or blast emails public for purposes of the insider trading laws? ........................................ 7-19

Q 9.20 Can an employer be liable if one of its employees or agents misappropriates information from a third party and then trades on it? ................................................................................................. 9-33
Q 9.21 What can an employer do to prevent its employees from misappropriating information from itself or a third party? ..........9-35
Q 9.22 Can the recipient of information under a confidentiality agreement do anything to require public disclosure of the confidential information so as to be able to resume trading? ..........9-37

Chapter 10 Tipper and Tippee Liability

Howard Schiffman

Definitions and Basic Principles ...............................................................10-2
Q 10.1 What is a “tipper” and what is a “tippee”? .................................10-2
Q 10.2 How is tipper-tippee liability established under the insider trading laws? .................................................................10-2
Q 10.3 What constitutes a “personal benefit”? .....................................10-4
Q 10.4 If a tippee does not know that he or she was provided information in breach of a fiduciary duty, can the tippee still be exposed to insider trading liability? .................................10-10
Q 10.5 Can a tipper be held liable where the tippee has not been found to have had sufficient awareness of the tipper’s breach of fiduciary duty? .........................................................10-11
Q 10.6 If only the tipper and tippee were present at the time of an alleged tip, and both deny that material nonpublic information was communicated, can either still be found to have engaged in insider trading? .........................................................10-12
Q 10.7 If the tippee does not trade, can the tipper still be liable for insider trading? .................................................................10-12

Remote Tippees ......................................................................................10-14
Q 10.8 If a tippee does not trade, but instead communicates the material nonpublic information to someone else—that is, a “remote tippee”—can the remote tippee be held liable? How about the original tippee? .........................................................10-14
Q 10.9 Can remote tippees be liable even if they do not know the original source of the material nonpublic information? ..........10-15
Q 10.10 Can remote tippees be liable if they do not know that the original source received a personal benefit in exchange for divulging the information? .........................................................10-15
Penalties ..............................................................................................................10-16
Q 10.11 What penalties can the government seek in tipper-tippee cases? .................................................................10-16

Tipper-Tippee Liability and Tender Offers (Rule 14e-3) ...............................10-18
Q 10.12 What is Rule 14e-3’s antitipping prohibition? ..................................10-18
Q 10.13 To whom does the Rule 14e-3 antitipping prohibition apply? .......10-19
Q 10.14 Does Rule 14e-3 also establish liability for tippees who trade? ........................................................................10-19
Q 10.15 What constitutes a “substantial step” toward the commencement of a tender offer for purposes of tippee liability under Rule 14e3? .................................................................10-20
Q 10.16 Does Rule 14e-3 provide any exceptions that would allow purchases in advance of a tender offer? .........................10-21
Q 10.17 Is there a safe harbor from liability under Rule 14e-3’s antitipping prohibition? .......................................................10-21
  Q 10.17.1 What constitutes “good faith” under the safe harbor? ..............10-22
Q 10.18 Can a company face insider trading liability where its employee has tipper-tippee liability? ........................................10-23

Chapter 11 Regulation Fair Disclosure
Marcy Ressler Harris

Policies Underlying Regulation FD .................................................................11-3
Q 11.1 What is Regulation FD? ........................................................................11-3
Q 11.2 Why did the SEC adopt Regulation FD? .............................................11-3
Q 11.3 What is the relationship between Regulation FD and traditional insider trading laws? ..............................................11-5
Q 11.4 Is there a private right of action under Regulation FD? .....................11-5
Q 11.5 How has the SEC enforced Regulation FD? ......................................11-5

Required Disclosures .......................................................................................11-6
Q 11.6 How does Regulation FD work? ............................................................11-6
  Q 11.6.1 What is a prompt disclosure? .............................................................11-6
  Q 11.6.2 What is the difference between an intentional disclosure and one that is unintentional? .....................................11-7
  Q 11.6.3 What is material information? ..........................................................11-8
  Q 11.6.4 What is “nonpublic” information? ....................................................11-9
  Q 11.6.5 What is a “public” disclosure? ............................................................11-9

xxxviii
Disclosure via Website

Q 11.7 Is a disclosure made on an issuer’s website a “public” disclosure? .................................................................11-10
  Q 11.7.1 What makes a website a recognized channel of distribution? .................................................................11-10
  Q 11.7.2 How is information adequately disseminated to the marketplace on a website? ........................................11-11
  Q 11.7.3 How can a company disseminate material information via social media websites such as Facebook and Twitter? ..................................................................................11-12
  Q 11.7.4 What is a reasonable time period for the public to react to information on a company’s website? ..........11-13

Scope Issues

Q 11.8 Whose conduct does Regulation FD target? .........................11-15
  Q 11.8.1 Does Regulation FD cover only disclosures by issuers or are disclosures by others covered as well? ..........11-15
  Q 11.8.2 Can someone who receives selective disclosure of material nonpublic information and subsequently trades based upon that information be liable under Regulation FD if that person is not a senior official of the issuer? ........................................................................11-16
Q 11.9 What disclosures fall outside Regulation FD? ........................11-17
  Q 11.9.1 What if a disclosure is made pursuant to a confidentiality agreement? ..............................................................11-17
Q 11.10 To avoid violating Regulation FD, does an issuer need to use the identical language in its public and private disclosures? .................................................................................................................11-18
Q 11.11 When an issuer learns that its public disclosure did not adequately communicate the intended message, what steps can it take under Regulation FD to clarify or amplify its message? ..................................................................................11-19
Q 11.12 If a corporate insider provides an analyst with material nonpublic information that the analyst knows is material and nonpublic, does Regulation FD bar the analyst from trading or recommending that others trade on the basis of that information? ................................................................11-20

Evolution of Regulation FD

Q 11.13 How has Regulation FD changed since its adoption? ..........11-21
Q 11.14 Has Regulation FD achieved its intended purpose? ..........11-22
Related Disclosure Rules of the Self-Regulatory Organizations ................11-26
Q 11.15  How have the self-regulatory organizations addressed the disclosure of material information? ..................................................11-26

Compliance Programs ..................................................................................14-46
Q 14.13 What should market professionals do to protect against insider trading liability? ..................................14-46
Chapter 15  Use of Consultants

Charles J. Clark

Overview of Risks

Q 15.1 Why do some investors use consultants as part of their research efforts?

Q 15.2 What insider trading risks are raised by the use of consultants?

Q 15.3 Do certain types of consultants raise more concerns than others?

Q 15.4 Do consultants who are current employees of a public company automatically violate Regulation Fair Disclosure in speaking with investors if they share material nonpublic information about the issuer that employs them?

Q 15.5 Is it safe to use a consultant who is not a current employee of a public company?

Q 15.5.1 What are the obligations of former directors, officers, and employees generally?

Q 15.5.2 What if the consultant is subject to a confidentiality agreement?

Q 15.6 Are there risks even in using a consultant who was never an employee of a public company?

Information Received from Consultants

Q 15.7 Is there any exposure if I receive background information from the consultant but do not make my trading decision based on that information?

Q 15.8 Can I avoid liability by asking only about industry information, as opposed to company-specific information?

Q 15.9 What should I do if, in response to a general question, the consultant provides a specific, detailed answer that appears to contain material nonpublic information?

Q 15.10 Can I avoid liability by telling the consultant up front not to divulge material nonpublic information and that I do not want to be restricted?

Q 15.11 What if I obtain a written confirmation from the consultant that he or she has not divulged material nonpublic information?
Compliance Procedures and Other Ways to Reduce Risk .................................................15-14

Q 15.12 What compliance procedures should I put in place when dealing with consultants to protect against insider trading liability? ..........................................................................................................................15-14

Q 15.13 Does using a consulting service (or “expert network firm”) eliminate all insider trading risks? .................................................................15-16

Q 15.14 Does the safe harbor of section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 insulate me from insider trading liability if I use “soft dollars” to pay a research firm? .........................15-17

Regulatory Actions ..............................................................................................................15-18

Enforcement Actions and Prosecutions Based on the Use of Consultants ........................................15-18

Q 15.15 Has any government agency brought enforcement actions or criminal prosecutions based on the use of consultants? ....15-18

Q 15.15.1 Have enforcement actions or criminal prosecutions been brought for the use of consultants offering government information? ...............................................................15-18

Q 15.15.2 Has the use of consultants led to the SEC finding deficiencies in a firm’s policies and procedures? ........15-20

Q 15.15.3 Have enforcement actions or criminal prosecutions been brought for the use of consultants offering information on drug trials? ..............................................................15-22

Q 15.15.4 Have enforcement actions or criminal prosecutions been brought against consulting firms and those that use them? .................................................................15-23

Q 15.16 Is it acceptable to leave compliance to the consultant? ........15-25

Q 15.16.1 Am I safe in assuming that the consultant (or “expert network” firm) has adequate policies and procedures in place to protect me from any possible insider trading liability? .........................................................15-25

Chapter 16 Tender Offers

Alan R. Glickman & Marc Weingarten

Origins of Section 14(e) and Rule 14e-3 ..................................................................................16-2

Q 16.1 Are there special rules relating to trading on the basis of material nonpublic information in the context of a tender offer? ..................................................................................................................16-2
Q 16.2 What types of offers does Rule 14e-3 apply to? ........................................16-3
Q 16.3 Why did the SEC adopt Rule 14e-3? ...............................................................16-3
Q 16.4 When do prohibitions on insider trading in the context of tender offers apply? ........................................................................................................16-4
  Q 16.4.1 What constitutes a “substantial step” toward commencing a tender offer? .........................................................................................16-4

Scope of Rule 14e-3 ........................................................................................................16-4

Q 16.5 What are the elements to prove a violation of Rule 14e-3? .................16-4
Q 16.6 How is Rule 14e-3 different from Rule 10b-5, the more general antifraud provision pursuant to which most insider trading cases are brought? ........................................................................16-5
  Q 16.6.1 Is Rule 14e-3 a valid exercise of the SEC’s rulemaking authority? ........................................................................................................16-6
Q 16.7 When is nonpublic information relating to a tender offer “material”? ........16-7
Q 16.8 Can a violation of Rule 14e-3 be prosecuted as a criminal offense? .................................................................16-7
Q 16.9 Does a trader have to know that the information relates to a tender offer for liability to attach? ........................................................................16-7
  Q 16.9.1 Is this true even in a criminal prosecution? ........................................16-8
Q 16.10 Can liability under Rule 14e-3 be established on a showing of mere negligence? ..................................................................................16-8
  Q 16.10.1 Is this true even in a criminal prosecution? ........................................16-9
Q 16.11 Must the government show that a trader used the material nonpublic information in deciding to trade? ...................................................................16-9
Q 16.12 May a company be held liable under Rule 14e-3 where Employee A knows of the material nonpublic information but Employee B, who trades on behalf of the company, does not know of the information? ................................................................16-9
Q 16.13 Does Rule 14e-3 have a specific provision for tipper liability? ..........16-9
  Q 16.13.1 When does liability attach for tipping under Rule 14e-3? ........................................................................16-10

Exemptions, Remedies, and Private Actions ...................................................................16-10

Q 16.14 What exemptions are available under Rule 14e-3? ................................16-10

Q 16.16 Is there a private right of action under Rule 14e-3? ............................16-10
  Q 16.16.1 Who can bring a private action under Rule 14e-3? ..................16-11
  Q 16.16.2 What remedies can be sought in a private suit? ............................16-11
Chapter 17  Private Investments in Public Equity (PIPEs)

Eleazer Klein & Eric A. Bensky

PIPEs in General

Q 17.1  What is a PIPE?  ................................................................. 17-3
Q 17.2  How are investments in PIPEs typically offered and sold?  ...... 17-4
Q 17.3  Since the issuer’s stock price usually falls when a PIPE is announced, how do PIPE investors protect against such losses?  ................................................................. 17-5

Insider Trading Risks Arising out of PIPEs

Q 17.4  How can PIPE investors become restricted from trading?  ....... 17-6
  Q 17.4.1  What are the practical implications of becoming restricted from trading following a typical PIPE solicitation?  .................................................. 17-6
Q 17.5  Under what circumstances has a prospective investor accepted, explicitly or implicitly, a duty of confidentiality and therefore assumed a duty to disclose prior to trading while aware of information about a forthcoming PIPE?  .......... 17-7
  Q 17.5.1  Under what circumstances may a duty of trust or confidence arise by express agreement?  ......................... 17-8
  Q 17.5.2  Do confidentiality agreements need to be explicit in order to give rise to a duty of trust or confidence?  .......... 17-9
Q 17.6  Can a prospective PIPE investor inadvertently become restricted by gaining unsolicited knowledge of the upcoming offering?  .................................................. 17-10
  Q 17.6.1  What are best practices for placement agents to use when contacting prospective PIPE investors?  ............... 17-11
  Q 17.6.2  What can a prospective PIPE investor do to avoid inadvertent restrictions on trading?  ......................... 17-12
Q 17.7  What type of liability may attach to those who trade while in possession of material nonpublic information regarding upcoming PIPE offerings?  .................................................. 17-13
  Q 17.7.1  Has the SEC been the only regulator investigating PIPE transactions for potential insider trading?  ............... 17-14
Q 17.8  Is knowledge of an upcoming PIPE offering per se material?  .... 17-16
Q 17.9  What theories underlie violations involving section 5 of the 1933 Act?  ................................................................. 17-17
SEC Actions Involving PIPEs .................................................................................................................. 17-18
Q 17.10 How successful has the SEC been in settling PIPE cases? .................................................. 17-18
Q 17.11 How successful has the SEC been in litigating PIPE cases? .............................................. 17-22
Q 17.12 In light of SEC v. Cuban, is proof of an investor's agreement not to trade necessary for insider trading liability, or is an agreement to keep information confidential, without a promise to abstain from trading, enough? .................................................. 17-25
Q 17.12.1 What was the SEC's case against Cuban? ............................................................................ 17-26
Q 17.12.2 On what grounds did the district court initially dismiss the case? .................................. 17-27
Q 17.12.3 What questions did the Fifth Circuit leave unanswered? ................................................. 17-28
Q 17.12.4 On what grounds did the court deny Cuban's motion for summary judgment? .................... 17-30
Q 17.12.5 Where does Cuban leave the PIPEs industry? ................................................................. 17-33

Chapter 18 Out-of-Court Restructurings, the Bankruptcy Context, and Creditors' Committees

Adam C. Harris & Howard O. Godnick

Applicability of Securities Laws .......................................................................................................... 18-2

Introduction

Harry S. Davis

The securities laws prohibit any person (or entity) from trading on the basis of material nonpublic information which has been obtained in breach of a duty of trust or confidence. There are serious penalties—both civil and criminal—for engaging in insider trading, and securities regulators and criminal prosecutors alike view insider trading as a very serious offense. One need do no more than read the daily newspapers or watch the evening newscasts to see that the securities regulators and prosecutors take insider trading seriously, enforce the prohibition vigorously, and will bring their considerable resources to bear on anyone believed to have engaged in insider trading. Not only are the civil and criminal penalties for insider trading severe but the reputational damage associated with even being alleged to have engaged in insider trading can be irreparable.

Insider trading is not just an important legal issue. The subject has become a part of popular culture in America, featured not just in the news but in television shows, movies, books, and other forms of entertainment. In part, that is because the laws prohibiting insider trading are intended to protect the marketplace upon which so much of the U.S. economy depends and because the concept that a corporate insider should not be permitted to profit from corporate information at the expense of “mom and pop” shareholders is easily understood, is grounded in principles of fairness, and is an accepted part of the American way of life.

Because the insider trading laws apply to everyone—not just corporate insiders—a proper understanding of both the basics of insider trading law and some of the complexities and nuances of this important area of the law is important to anyone who invests in the securities markets.

Chapter 1 of this book offers a general overview of the law of insider trading, the policies underlying the law in this sphere, and how the law has developed over time. Subsequent chapters provide a more in-depth treatment of all of the important aspects of insider trading law as well as the application of that law to a number of specific issues, such as tender offers, private investments in public equity securities (PIPEs), and “Big Boy Letters.” Along the way, this book explores the breadth of instruments that fit within the definition of “securities,” what it means for a trade to be “on the basis of” material nonpublic information, how to determine what information is or is not “material,” what it means for information to be “nonpublic,” and how to determine whether or not there has been a breach of a duty of trust or confidence under either the “classical theory” of insider trading or the “misappropriation theory.” The book also answers important questions concerning “tipper” and “tippee” liability, how the insider trading laws are enforced and by whom, what the penalties are for running awry of the law, and how the insider trading laws apply in the United Kingdom. Finally, the book considers how to set up effective compliance procedures to protect individuals and firms against insider trading liability, including policies and procedures, testing, oversight, and other compliance issues.

This book is intended for everyone, from lay people who may trade in securities only periodically to corporate insiders, professional traders, investment advisers, broker-dealers, and other financially sophisticated people and firms. Because so much of the evolving law of insider trading is dependent upon the individual facts and circumstances of each specific case, readers are urged to consult with experienced securities law professionals to assist when specific issues arise.
